

JESSE BEVAN BROWN

Preview Monday 28 April
Exhibition closes 30 May, 2025

The Union Club proudly presents 'All Together Now', a wonderful collection of new paintings by Jesse Bevan Brown that we promise will raise a smile and spring to your step.

Whenever possible, Jesse loves to wander around London's elegant squares and parks with a sketchbook in hand doing that most important of pastimes: watching people going about their daily life. Using a vivid colour palette and beguilingly simple compositions, his depiction of human life (often animal too) is humorous, sometimes absurdly comical, and utterly relatable. Whether a dazed crowd beneath a fishy sky, or park goers gathered in plump winter coats, Jesse's vibrant scenes create a world in which togetherness is comfortably at the centre.

Those familiar with Jesse's work may recall his Christmas card vignette of the Union Club sold out in a flash back in 2020, and we trust these delightful new works by the artist will be as equally cherished.

Biography

Jesse Bevan Brown was born in London, graduated with French and Economics from Sussex University and went on to study Graphic Design at Kingston University. After winning a prestigious RSA Student Designer Prize, he was employed as a graphic designer by the BBC and then ran his own successful graphic design agency for several years. With a strong emphasis on illustration, commissions and commercial projects include Bamford, Soho House, Cliveden, The Connaught, Marriott Hotels, and Pump Street Chocolate. He has exhibited at several galleries and art fairs in London and the UK, including annual shows at Rebecca Hossack gallery, courtesy of Fitzrovia Arts Festival.
